

Abstract of the Disclosure

A job entered into a processor element (PE) of a parallel computer system is moved to a different PE, or written to an external auxiliary storage device by being frozen, with dynamic scheduling. A scheduler estimates the remaining time of execution of each job, compares with a migration/freezing cost, and determines a job to be moved/frozen.